THE LAND QUESTION IN ZIMBABWE

- 1 Carefully study the following sources and then answer all the questions which follow.

SOURCE A

In 1980, 30-50% of people in rural areas had no land. This compelled the government to start the land reform programme in order to correct the land imbalances. However, the Lancaster House Agreement had its constraints as it guaranteed white settlers' ownership of land for the first 10 years of independence.

Adapted from a book by Modern Zimbabwean historians published in 2021.

SOURCE B

A proposal for a national land policy was made and it was formalised and enshrined as the Land Acquisition Act of 1992 which freed the government from the willing seller, willing buyer policy. This piece of legislation enabled and empowered the government to acquire any land it saw fit.

Adapted from a book by Modern Zimbabwean historians published in 2021.

SOURCE C

Government found itself under pressure for results. There were communal areas that had become seriously over-crowded and at this time of political hardships there was an outcry for land reform from politicians. In February 2000, after government lost the constitutional referendum, it decided to go on the fast-track resettlement scheme.
