1. You have discovered that a popular member of the community sexually abuses vulnerable learners. Unfortunately, your attempts to report to the authorities meets threats and reprisals from the perpetrator.

Present a performance that reveals the problem to the learners, empowering them to protect themselves. [100]

2. Making use of dramatic elements, recite a praise poem of any leader of the liberation struggle of Zimbabwe of your choice. [100]

3. The media has many stories about marriage ceremonies based on foreign culture. Your teacher asks you to present a performance that can help revive traditional marriage ceremonies. [100]

Assume the lead role in a dance drama based on a traditional marriage ceremony from a Zimbabwean culture of your choice. [100]

4. Your school will be participating in the district traditional dance competitions. Unfortunately, there are no props to use in the performance.

Using locally available resources, construct any three props that you will use during the dance. Make an oral presentation explaining your choice of the props and their relevance to the dance. [100]

5. With the help of two other learners of your choice, perform an adaptation of the following extract from The Sun Will Rise Again by George Mujajati. Assume the role of Sofia.

At the moment a curious thought crept into my mind. I looked at the note that Nyati had written to my father. Maybe that note would provide me with some answers. I carefully unsealed the envelope. Inside were two little pieces of paper that were neatly folded. One of the little pieces of paper was a ten thousand dollar cheque payable to “Mr Joseph Takundwa.”

The other piece of paper had two phrases printed in capital letters “THE LAST, NO MORE!”

I still remember the turmoil that I went through as I tried to weigh the pros and cons of either taking or rejecting Nyati’s job offer. I had to talk to my mother about this.

“Mother, I have been offered a job.”

“Offered a job? Who offered you the job?”

“Mr Nyati offered me a job... He said that I should start work tomorrow.”

“Mr Nyati again! He hasn’t given up yet, hu-u. So you have already decided to take up the job? I just don’t trust that man. I know what he is after! Does your father know about this arrangement?”

I shook my head.

“So do you want the job?”

I did not answer.

“What kind of job does he want you to do?”

“I don’t know.”

“How can you get a job which you know nothing about?”

“Ah, I just don’t know what to do. He said he would give me nine thousand dollars per month!”

After a few minutes of contemplative silence mother said, “We should wait to hear what your father will say about this matter!”

That evening father returned home early. He was very anxious to know what I had brought from Nyati. He therefore summoned me as soon as he entered the house.

“Sofia! Did – did you go? Did you see Mr Nyati?” he stammered anxiously.

“Yes I went!”

“Did - did you see him!”

“Yes I saw him. He gave me this.”

I noticed that my father’s fingers were trembling as he opened the envelope. A broad smile suddenly beamed across his face. “Ten thousand dollars,” he whispered, disbelief written all over his face. He pocketed the cheque. Then immediately, he took the cheque out of his pocket and looked at it again! “Ten thousand dollars!” he whispered again. “E-e, I am going out now. There is somebody very important that I would like to meet.”

Mother who had just walked in immediately intercepted him. “Before you go, there is something important I want to tell you.”

“Can’t you wait?”

“It’s very important,” mother emphasized.

“Alright, what is it? Tell me, quick.”

“Mr Nyati offered Sofia a job.”

“Very lucky girl, he-e. So when are you going to start work?”

“That is why we have been waiting for you.”

“Waiting for me to do what?”

“Sofia has not yet accepted the job.”

“Not yet accepted the job! Is she mad?”

“She does not know whether to take the job or not.”

“You people must be mad. You just don’t know how lucky you are to find a job so easily, my little girl. Nowadays a job is the most difficult thing to find in this country. These days even graduates from the University are finding it almost impossible to find a job, and yet you want to turn down such a job!”

“I just don’t trust this Nyati at all. Remember those things that he used to bring for Sofia. It’s very clear to me that your friend has got other things in his mind.”

“Other things like what? It’s people like you who have nothing in your minds who can only think of such stupid things. People who are only good at eating. The only part of your head that works properly is your mouth, always eating and talking rubbish! As for you girl, if you don’t take up that job, then you should never expect anything from me ever again from today onwards. You want to refuse a job that will pay nine thousand dollars a month?”

Both mother and I stood there dumbfounded. “Who told you that Sofia would get nine thousand dollars?”

“Never mind who told me that! This is a chance that must never be missed. Jobs are the most difficult thing to find in this country at the moment. Where do you think that you will ever get another job that would give you that kind of money? Anyway I am going out now, but before I go let me tell you something for nothing you two. I want you to sit down and use your brains for the first time in your lives. I am tired of feeding people who are only good at eating.” [100]
